Pastor Speaks

Where Do They Come From?

Riding along one of our highways recently I keep noticing shiny objects lying along the shoulders of the road. Because of the numerous objects I was attracted to look more closely. To my amazement about every 30 yards there was one or more cans, most of them had had alcholic beverages in them.

You, you guessed right, people riding and driving on our highways are consuming billions of this deadly poison each year. And they add to the hazard of safety upon our highways.

Reflecting a bit as we traveled along the highway, I began to reason; 70 per cent of the people of our country are church members. Could it be that 30 per cent of the population consumed all the beverages? I would like to think that every professed Christian in our wonderful county did not put intoxicating drink. I wonder if my thinking is true in this respect? Still riding down the highway, perhaps out loud, I said to myself, "The whole alcohol business is like an octopus, it has wrapped itself around the society of today. Can you think of any area which is not affected? It has become a part of our educational system, political system, socially accepted, and want to stay involved. These involvements have just about enveloped the "moral" aspects of alcohol. The world system uses the term "consider" in dealing with some difficulties. We don't want to hurt any body, so we surrender to the demands of world, and let the poison flow on to destroy people.

I am grateful for our county in not allowing legal outlets, and for every effort to stop the bootleggers. I understand that at the turn of this century a group of Christian laymen under afeeling of moral concern, that the old open liquor system was expelled from this county, and hasn't reopened since. Right now the liquor by the drink legislation is in the hopper. We hope and pray that the same moral stand will be taken by the Christians of our county. Too, I would like to publically commend our local newspaper, the Times Virginian, for not entering into the advertising field with the liquor interest.

What can we of our beloved county do? First of all let's each remain dry so far as the consumption is concerned. Let's not use it ourselves. Let's prove that we practice what we believe. Let all the church people declare a moratorium on alcoholic beverages. It will go a long way in solving this problem.

Then, as parents, let's do something positive, let's lead our young people to know of the ill-effects of alcohol. Let's by-pass the social, and other stigmas which the people of the world place upon us. Let's be willing as parents to be "squares." Children need the authority of influence in building their lives, and we who are parents know how to use this in other fields, why not in this one?

I am grateful for the educational systems that are now including the facts about alcohol in their cirriculum. As in the case of cigarettes scientific information, accurate information, is being distributed about the ill-effects. Along with one of our syndicated colum writers who said this week "Listen to what they are saying", I pray we may listen wisely. We need to build a different philosophy towards those cans which are strewn along our highways. Let's do this refraining from drinking, teaching the physical ill-effects, and not the least teach the Christian attitude with respect to alcohol.

A vital Christian experience will resolve 90 per cent of the problem of those cans. Belive in what Christ stands for, and His church preaches. Support your Christian community in its never-ending responsibility of maintaining a live, vital and sober society of christian people.

Minister Addresses UDC Meeting "Cavalier, Covenanter, Huguenot"

Dr. W. Twyman Williams addressed the Appomattox Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy at their January meeting using as his theme the lives of of three famous Confederate heroes celebrating their birthdays during the month, General Robert E. Lee, January 19; General Thomas Jonathan Jackson, January 21, and mComodore Matthew Fontaine Maury, born January 14.

Dr. Williams was introduced by Miss Julia Asher, club historian. The dining room of the Parkway Restaurant was decorated with magnolia foliage and several dried arrangements with white candles in silver candlesticks placed on each table.

Explaining that "volumes have been written" about the three great men of the Confederacy being honored. Dr. Williams told the group that Lee, Jackson, and Maury" stand out as unsurpassed representatives of three national and religious streams" who have enriched our heritage both as "Southerners" and Citizens of the U.S."

Of Maury, the Huguenot, Dr. Williams said, "Let us remember that Maury is still of all American scientists the one who received the most numerous honors from European governments and learned societies . . . his life illustrates . . .that brilliance of intellect and scientific ability of the first rank can go with purity of character and with simplicity and strength of Christian faith.

Dr. Williams said that it was Christian faith that "produced the moral and spiritual qualities that came to finest flower in Lee and Jackson and Maury. The speaker quoted Garnaliel Bradford who said of Robert E. Lee, the Cavalier, "It is rare to find a soldier making war . . . with the pity, the tenderness, the sympathy of a true follower of Christ'

And of General Jackson, the Covenanter Dr. Williams said Sunday afternoons were kept free from business —and that Jackson enjoyed hymns and on many occasions testified to his faith.

In tracing their ancestry, Dr. Williams said that without these great "Streams" — Covenanter, Huguenot, and Cavalier, "the Revolution would have failed, if indeed it would ever have begun, and there would have been no United States of America."

Next meeting of the UDC will be Friday, February 21, at 3 p. m.

Members and guests present for the dinner included Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Burte, Mrs. E. Carroll Smith, Mrs. Grace Winters, Watkins Abbitt, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Robinson, Dr. and Mrs. Twyman Williams, Mrs. M. G. Stimpson, Miss Kate Franklin, Mrs. Paul Young, Miss Mary Reeves Black, Mrs. W. R. Brightwell, Mrs. William Black, Mrs. H. P. Davis, Miss Julia Asher, Mrs. Hunter Dickerson, Mrs. G. L. Doss, Mrs. H. G. Johnson, Mrs. C. S Booth, and Mrs. Ed Cawthorne.

Buckingham Lady Offered Lodging To Lee, April '65

About two miles east of Buckingham courthouse on U. S. 60 is the 'Robert E. Lee Wayside Park.' It was here that Lee bivouacked with his men on his way to Richmond after the surrender at Appomattox April 11, 1865.

A quiet little road bends off to the south, through the park, after which one comes to 'Rose Cottage,' once called the old 'Peale House.' It was built many years before the Civil War by William Shepherd, and is believed to be about 200 years old. It is presently owned by the Buckingham United Daughters of the Confederacy.

It was at 'Rose Cottage' that Lee and his staff endeavored to find food and lodging. It was Mrs. Martha Shepherd, the widow who lived in Rose Cottage at the time, who invited General Lee to come from the camping grounds into the house to have coffee and spend the night.

There are six rooms, four downstairs and two upstairs. One room contains mementos of the Civil War era, put there —by members of the UDC and their funds, and also by the Shepherd family.

A number of Buckingham residents have always been interested and hopeful of seeing Rose Cottage converted into a museum.

The Governor's Highway Safety Committee asks motorists to drive as they would like to see others drive. Strict observation of the Golden rule at all times by pedestrians and drivers could cut traffic crashes ninety per cent. Try it!
